Guangzhou, Hangzhou, Xi'an, Beijing and Shanghai

A vibrant and cosmopolitan city with a very rich commercial history is Guangzhou. The contrast between traditional markets and skyscrapers filled with lights combines with the characteristic Cantonese cuisine that is legendary and known worldwide. The Canton Tower was the tallest communication tower in the world from 2010 to 2012 and is a must-visit to reach the highest point of the city.

In Hangzhou, you can immerse yourself in the tranquillity of its landscapes, with West Lake at the heart of local life. The lake is surrounded by gardens, pagodas and evocative paths. Our recommendation: let yourself be carried by its rhythm and go in search of the finest Longjing tea, grown in the nearby hills.

Situated in the fertile valley of the Wei River, Xian was the eastern end of the famous Silk Road. The city rose to international fame in 1974, when the immortal terracotta warriors of Emperor Qin Shi Huang were found nearby, one of the greatest archaeological finds in history.

During the visit to Beijing, you will be able to enter the Forbidden City, the fortress from which the emperors ruled for more than 500 years, and other historical places such as the Summer Palace and the Temple of Heaven. Beijing is also the ideal starting point to discover one of the Seven Wonders of the World, the Great Wall of China.

Shanghai has a changing aspect that is renewed day by day with the construction of imposing skyscrapers that emerge in the Pudong area, among which the peculiar Television Tower, the Shanghai World Financial Center and the Jin Mao Tower stand out.
